Introduction

This factsheet looks to give the facts a person would need to know to run Skiing for a group of young people. It should be read in conjunction with the factsheet FS120084 Scout Led Activities Index, and Policy, Organisation and Rules (POR) of The Scout Association.

What is Skiing?

Skiing includes all snowsports on two blades or skis. It can take place on snow slopes or artificial slopes. It includes various different techniques and disciplines, including those known as alpine (downhill), nordic (cross country), freestyle, Telemarking and blading.

What is a Skiing Permit?

The adventurous activity permit scheme is designed to ensure that only people with the relevant skills and experience lead adventurous activities for the young people. Therefore all activities classed as adventurous can only be led by someone holding the appropriate permit.

A Skiing permit is required for all Skiing activities that take place in Terrain 1 or Terrain 2, except those that take place on artificial slopes or nursery slopes. Definitions of terrains and nursery slopes can be found in POR. Skiing activities in Terrain 0 do not require a Skiing permit.

Types of Permits

There are three types of permit available to lead Skiing. These are:

- On Piste Group Skiing
- Off Piste Terrain 1

- Off Piste Terrain 2

Definitions of On and Off Piste can be found in POR.

Additionally, each of these permits can be further restricted (such as through geographical locations, ski run grade etc) to end up with an individual permit to the level of the competence and requirements of any person.

As well as a permit to lead, it is possible to gain a permit to supervise Skiing for each of the terrains and conditions listed above.

In addition to leading and supervising permits, it is possible to gain a personal competence permit for On Piste Personal Skiing.

Permit Limitations

If you have a permit to lead Skiing then you will need to be with your group at all times. Details of group sizes for Skiing can be found in POR.

A permit to supervise Skiing allows you to supervise more than one group at a time from a suitable distance. You remain responsible for all the groups you are supervising, but can designate someone with the appropriate skills to be the leader of each group.

A Personal Skiing permit allows you to Ski with others holding a Personal Skiing permit, without the need for someone with a leading or supervising permit to be present. It does not allow you to Ski with non-permit holders.

Definition of Supervision

If you hold a permit to supervise Skiing then you can supervise up to three groups remotely. This should be from no further away than 3km. You should also ensure that adequate systems have been set up to monitor and communicate with the groups. The permit holder remains responsible for all groups at all times.

Designations

When remotely supervising groups the holder of a Skiing supervisor permit needs to designate a leader for each group. This designation lasts only for the current activity while the permit holder is supervising.

People designated as group leaders should hold the skills and be responsible enough to lead a group safely in the terrain in which they are. There is no problem with making young people group leaders if they are up to the role, and it can be used as a useful development tool.

Further Definitions

Permit Exemptions – As described in POR, it is possible to get short term personal permit exemptions. These are designed for use while on snowsports holidays and getting instruction from professional instructors, to allow personal practice at a suitable level while away from the instructors (i.e. instruction every morning, personal practice every afternoon).

They can only be given for on piste personal skiing, not leading or supervising, and last for the length of the holiday (maximum of one week).

Exemption can only be given with agreement from both a ski instructor (minimum qualification Instructor of BASI, equivalent or higher) and the young person's responsible Leader. It must limit the level to which the young person can ski based on the technical input of the instructor and a personal suitability check by the Leader.
